

THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT PRESENTS

An Evening With Professor Suzanne Miller

Please join us for a performance from Miller's work in progress, No Place for a Man, followed by a talk about the play and her process as a playwright. Reception to follow.

"Suzanne Miller's wonderful and faithful adaptation of 'Frederick' reminds us of the importance of finding your own path, even when others may doubt the worth of such dreams."

—Chicago Critic

"No Place for a Man" revolves around the notion of privacy in a very public world. Drawing on public figures such as Valerie Plame, Edward Snowden, and Laura Poitras, "No Place for a Man" explores our fear of— and fascination with— "the leak."
