

Copyright for Teaching, Scholarship, and Open Educational Resources

Is it ethical to post an article to Blackboard if it's not available online?
Should you sign a restrictive author agreement with a publisher?
Is it legal to show students a film in class?

As part of teaching and scholarly practices, we routinely confront (or ignore) the challenges introduced by copyright. This workshop will demystify copyright misconceptions and introduce practical solutions for the common copyright challenges you confront as a teacher and scholar.

Refreshments will be served.

Open to Faculty.

DATE:

Friday, November 3, 2017

TIME:

12:00-1:30pm

VENUE:

Library Modular Learning Space
Atrium 543

<https://library.citytech.cuny.edu>

RSVP to Prof. Monica Berger
mberger@citytech.cuny.edu

